He was not a member of the choir, but by one of those 'chances,' guided by Providence to blessed rehe had excerted one of our singers, and was waiting to take her home. I remember giving him a thought as the sermon opened—wishing that Mr. Wood had chosen one less exclusively for Christians In a few weeks this young man stood up in our village church to profess his faith in Christ and his purpose to serve him. Long siterward Mr. Wood told me the story of his conversion as young Wilton had told it to him:

aid he, 'and was merely waiting for Miss Nettie; but as you read on I looked around, and every face in the room were a look of joyous expectation; I began to realize that this city of which you read was a blessed reality to them. and that their faces were all turned toward it; that I stood in a company of children on their way home, and with s sinking heart I realised that I was not of their company. I can never tell what I felt as, for the first time in my life, I realized that I had no hope for the future. All night I was tortured with the despair of the lost. When I went to church next morning your sermon had nothing in it for me and I felt like rushing out of church.

I stayed, and for the closing bymn you read with great earnestness, 'Just as I am without one plea.' From those simple words light poured in upon me, showing me a Seviour and how to secept him. A Willing Sacrifice.

Some years ago a minister was called pon to see a little girl seven years old, who was dying. She lived in a back street. When the minister got there a woman showed him were the child was, and he sat down to talk with

'What do you want, darling?' 'Well, sir, I wanted to see you before

'Are you dying?' Yes, sir. 'Would you like to get well again?' 'I hope not, sir.'

Why not? 'O. sir, ever since I became a Christian I have been trying to bring father to church, and he won't come; and I think if I die you will bury me, won't

'Yes, darling.' 'Well, I have been thinking if I die father must come to the funeral: then you will be able to preach the Gospel to him, and I should be willing to die six times over forthim to hear the gospel once. She died as she expected, and just before the time she was to be buried the minister himself was taken sick and could not attend the funeral. But some time afterward a rough looking man called upon him and held out his

'You don't know me ?' 'No. I don't.'

'I am the father of Mary-the father she died for. I heard as how she she said she would die for me six times and you shall shortly know that lengthened if I could only hear the gospel on se. It nearly broke my beart. Now I want to join the inquirer's class.'

> He did join, and became a true friend of Christ. That little girl was truly walking in the footsteps of Jesus, because she was willing to die even in order that her father might be saved from his sins. If we do not need to die for others, we should at least try to be like Jesus in living for them and in doing all that we can to lead them to be Christians .- Baptist Weekly.
